Posthumous Award Honors Eric Timm

The late Eric W. Timm of Bay City has been awarded the Distinguished Intelligence Medal in ceremonies at the new Central Intelligence Agency Building in Langley, Va.

The posthumous award was accepted by his son, Michael Eric Timm, last week in the offices of John A. McCone, director of intelligence.

Presentation was made by Richard Helms in absence of McCone. Also present was Mr. Timm's widow, Margaret Hand Timm, now residing in Arlington, Va.

Timm was a senior officer in the CIA and had given many years of service to the agency and its predecessor organization. A citation presented the Timms reads:

"During his career, Mr. Timm was highly successful in developing close and cordial relations with a number of foreign nations, thereby gaining their cooperation in the attainment of United States objectives.

"His unswerving devotion to the missions of the agency has resulted in the establishment of the highest professional standards and has brought about contributions of great merit to the agency and to the United States."
